Columbia Celebrates Anniversary

Forty years ago this month the first heat of steel was tapped at United States Steel's Columbia-Geneva division plant at Torrance.
 At that time the plant was known as the Llewellyn Iron Works and consisted of two 40 ton open hearth furnaces plus a steel foundry and several finishing mills. Today four 60 ton open hearth furnaces produce steel on a 24 hour basis.
 Only employ still at the Torrance works and present at the first pouring of steel is Albert Sarukian, who was an open hearth laborer at that time.
 Sarukian, a native of Armenia, who came to the United States in 1913, participated in the 40th anniversary informal plant. He expects to retire shortly and says he plans to visit relatives next year in Leninaka, USSR, Armenia. He lives with his wife at 736 Sartori st., Torrance.

Popular Bass Baritone To Open Artist Series

Lorenzo Alvary, famous bass-baritone of the Metropolitan opera, will open the Youth Band-Artist Concerts Series when he appears in joint concert with the Torrance Area Youth Band in the Torrance Civic Auditorium on Thursday night, November 8. This is the first of a series of five concerts sponsored by the Fouth Band-Artist Concerts association.
 With a repertoire of more than 60 opera roles and a wide variety of songs, Mr. Alvary is known as a highly entertaining singer who fills over a hundred engagements a year in opera and concert.
 In addition to his appearances at the Metropolitan, Mr. Alvary has been a regular member of the San Francisco opera since 1940 and a favorite guest star with other companies in North and South America.
 He has appeared as soloist with orchestras under Toscanini, Bruno Walter and other famous conductors, has made recordings for RCA-Victor and Columbia, and has won high praise for distinguished performance in oratorio, radio and television.
 With a special flair for humorous and character parts as well as more serious roles, Mr. Alvary's unique reputation as an interpretive artist is based on his rare combination of rich voice, through musicianship and versatile acting ability.
 Other artists featured in future concerts include Jean Casadesu, pianist, January 28, Adele Gebr, coloratura-soprano, March 9, Julian Olevsky, violinist, April 7, and the Youth Band's "Eleventh Anniversary Concert" on May 22. The last concert will feature as soloists the winners of four student music competition scholarships of one hundred dollars each.

 The season ticket campaign, in progress since October 11, officially closes on Thursday, November 1, however, tickets may be obtained at the box office the night of the first concert or by calling the Youth Band headquarters, FA. 8-5273.

COMMUNITY CHEST CAMPAIGN STARTS; KICK-OFF NOV. 8

Harbor area's goal in the current Community Chest campaign to raise $10,000,000 in the Los Angeles Area has been set at $85,786, Arthur O. Otsea, harbor area campaign chairman, announced today.
